

SOGETSU IKEBANA

The ancient art of Japanese flower arranging

Loris Dallal

Certified Instructor with over 30 years of experience

Ikebana represents the elements of heaven, earth and man, working in harmony.

This elegant beauty is obtained by using flowers, branches, rocks and any other natural materials.

It is a way of bringing one's love of nature into the home.

In experiencing the interrelationship between one's self and the outer world, it becomes another avenue of connecting with the beauty of nature, bringing a sense of inner peace, tranquility and serenity.

Not merely flower arranging, Ikebana is an art to portray the life of the universe. It was brought to Japan by Buddhist priests from China in the sixth century.

There are many different schools of Ikebana and each one is unique in its approach. Although rooted in rich tradition, Sogetsu emphasizes personal expression and is a newer and more contemporary school. Sogetsu believes that anyone can create Ikebana anywhere using any natural materials available.

Loris Dallal is a 3rd Degree Certified Ikebana Sogetsu Instructor who has studied, taught and exhibited in venues all over the United States, Japan, England, France, Germany and South Africa over the past 30 years. Loris obtained her Ikebana Certifications from the Ikebana World Headquarters in Tokyo, Japan. She continues to study Ikebana to achieve higher certifications. She holds degrees from the Barrett School of Design in London as well as Oxford University.
